DEFENDERS' LEAGUE

THE SERVICE BOYS ARE IN EARNEST IN ORGANIZING FOR MUTUAL BENEFIT

The history of soldiers' organizations since the Civil War is that they have done great things for the men belonging to them. The Grand Army of the Republic, organized soon after the close of that war, was at first merely fraternal and no attempt was made to promote the welfare of the individual by concerted effort on the part of local camps. But as the order grew in numbers the veterans realized their power and by wise methods of persuasion they brought about many reforms and induced Congress to pass measures for their relief. At first the pensions granted were woefully inadequate but proper representations from the Grand Army men brought about gradual increases and different manner of rating until today the debt of the Nation to those who preserved it in time of its greatest danger, is being adequately paid. The Confederate veterans likewise did many things in aid of worthy comrades in distress and promoted a fraternal feeling that counted for much. It is for the same great purposes that the various organizations of service men of the World War are now being promoted. In Glendale Pershing Command of the League of American Defenders is seeking only the good of its members and it deserves the support of every man who saw service of any kind in the late war. It will look into all grievances the men may have, will strive for just pensions and look generally after the welfare of those unable to help themselves. They want every service man in the Valley to affiliate with the order, for in union there is strength. The next meeting is to be held Thursday night in the Elks' building and will have some features about it that will commend themselves to all the boys. The League is not for any one man, but is for the best interests of all and as such it deserves the unanimous support of World War veterans. Don't forget Thursday night's meeting, you soldier and sailor boys, you wagoners and ambulance drivers, you fellows who served under the colors in any capacity.

SENIOR PLAY

The dramatic class of Glendale High has adopted the Senior play selected for production commencement week for its regular study during this the last quarter, but no assignment of parts will be made until time for final rehearsals. The play is "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," a clever skit by Anne Warner, and the study will be entertaining and profitable whether students appear in it before the footlights or not. Most of the class have had two years' training.

UP TO GOVERNOR

BILLS PASSED OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO SO. CALIFORNIA WHICH MAY BE VETOED

As stated in yesterday's issue of the Evening News, much of the legislation embodied in the 900 bills passed by the California legislature were appropriation bills or measures which will lead to expenditures. Among these is the provision for a state-wide election to vote $40,000,000 of bonds for highway improvement July 1st.

Along this line an appropriation of special interest to Southern California was secured, but not without considerable opposition even from the Auto Club of Southern California, and that was $800,000 for a road from Lancaster over the ridge into Bouquet Canyon at a lower elevation than the present ridge route.

Community property bills in which Women's Clubs had especially interested themselves had a stormy time for a while, according to Mr. White's report. Some introduced in the Senate were rejected in the assembly and vice versa. Representatives of the two houses finally got together however and passed bills which were acceptable to the women legislators and which it is believed will be considered just and acceptable to women at large without working a hardship on business as would some of the measures if passed.

The bill appropriating $200,000 for a home for delinquents was passed after being cut to $150,000 and it may be vetoed by the Governor because of lack of state funds.

The bill increasing the amount appropriated by the state for paying teachers from $15 to $17.50 per average daily attendance was passed and Mr. White believes will not be

A GLENDALE BOOSTER

Another booster for Glendale has been created in the person of E. W. Klein, who visited the city a few months ago with friends who were entertaining him with an auto trip, and was so impressed with its charms that he was seized with a desire to live here. He is now engaged in putting down an oil well near the Newhall tunnel for a new company to be known as the San Fernando Gas and Oil Company. His headquarters have been in Los Angeles, but it finally dawned upon him that he would be happier in Glendale, so he came out and is now a guest at the Glendale Sanitarium. He says he has traveled a great deal in the past eight years and been in all parts of the country, and likes Glendale a little better than any other place he has been in. If he can arrange his affairs satisfactorily he is planning to locate here permanently. The sinking of the well was started about five weeks ago and he expects to remain with it for the next three or four months until it is completed, and will probably continue to make his headquarters here.

BOLSHEVIK MAGAZINE

GLENDALE BEING FLOODED WITH COPIES OF LAWLESS PUBLICATION

Mr. A. L. Lawshe of 620 North Maryland telephoned the Evening News this morning stating that men were distributing copies of a magazine along that and other streets that advocated rank Bolshevik doctrines and plead for funds to aid I. W. W. members now under arrest for traitorous acts. According to morning Los Angeles papers two distributors of this same publication were arrested in San Pedro and brought to trial. The Police Judge before whom they appeared condemned the publication strongly and expressed a wish that the editors were before him for trial rather than the distributors. The Glendale police have been notified of the distribution of this magazine over the city and it is hoped something can be done to stop the spread of these pernicious doctrines.

WEATHER FORECAST: Fair except cloudy or foggy tonight and in the early morning near the coast.

MARTIAL LAW AT LINTON, IND.

GOVERNOR ISSUES PROCLAMATION, FEARING VIOLENCE IN CONNECTION WITH TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Linton, Ind., April 29.—Governor Goodrich today ordered martial law proclaimed at Linton at 8:10 a. m., fearing violence in connection with the repeated efforts of the Central Labor Council to deport eight strike-breaking telegraph operators. All the operators are girls who struck Thursday.

Soldiers and police are patrolling the city. Thus far there has been no violence, but it is understood that the miners, who make up the larger part of the Linton population, have secured arms, which they are said to have cached near the town.

LITTLE PROGRESS IN WOODMAN TRIAL

SERGEANT OF POLICE HACKETT INDICTED AND MORE INDICTMENTS ARE EXPECTED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Los Angeles, April 29.—In a last desperate effort to establish intimate relationship said to have existed between Mayor Woodman and Horace W. Karr, the prosecution today attempted to introduce in evidence a number of "incidents" from which the relationship might be inferred. This attempt precipitated a lively fight between opposing attorneys and each question was objected to. Most of the objections were sustained, and throughout the session little progress in the form of actual evidence was made.

While the trial proceeded the grand jury continued its session. Several negro women were called as witnesses and there were persistent rumors that two more indictments would be returned today. Sergeant of Police William Hackett was indicted last night, accused of accepting a bribe, and is at liberty on a $10,000 bond.

PERSONNEL OF KAISER'S JUDGES

EX-PRESIDENT TAFT, FORMER JUSTICE HUGHES AND ELIHU ROOT POSSIBLE APPOINTEES

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Washington, April 29.—It is believed that either former President Taft or former Justice Charles Evans Hughes will be the American member of the tribunal of five judges selected for the trial of Kaiser Wilhelm. Elihu Root also has been mentioned as a possibility. Lord Reading, Chief Justice of England, will be the British member of the court.

The trial probably will be held in Geneva. The five judges must work without legal precedent and with justice and morality as their only code. It is believed the judges will outline a general course of procedure before the trial opens.

Former American Ambassador Von Bernstorff is regarded as the probable selection of the kaiser to have charge of his defense.

It is understood that exile will be the penalty if the kaiser is convicted.

DAMAGING EARTHQUAKE IN SAN SALVADOR

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Washington, April 29.—State Department dispatches received today said an earthquake at San Salvador, in Central America, yesterday killed forty persons, injured many more and did heavy property damage. The American legation building was damaged, but still stands. No Americans have so far been reported among the killed.

NO AGREEMENT ON CHINA-JAPAN CONTROVERSY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

Paris, April 29.—It is semi-officially announced that the "Big Three" today failed to reach an agreement on the Chinese-Japanese territorial controversy at this morning's session, but will meet again late this afternoon to resume consideration of the subject.

Just previous to this morning's session the Japanese delegates conferred with President Wilson and it is understood they insisted on being granted the Shantung Peninsula.

B. P. O. E. 1289 GROWS

SIX NEW MEMBERS INITIATED MONDAY NIGHT WITH FITTING CEREMONIES

The fact that six new members were initiated Monday evening into B. P. O. E. 1289 shows that the local Elks' Lodge is growing rapidly and that its ambition to possess a membership of one thousand will soon be realized. The candidates initiated were: Frank Ellis, H. L. Wittenberg, Charles Peurrunt, John Ray Bentley, Charles Shuler and Charles A. Salyer; and Thomas McGuire joined by affiliation from the lodge at Baker, Ore.

During the ceremonies the appropriate music was furnished by the Lodge Orchestra, which also entertained after the meeting. It includes a number of men who have seen service, some of them abroad. Of these Herbert Henning, leader; William Bode, Leroy Flint and Earl Pippen were members of the 143d Field Artillery and had strenuous experiences overseas. I. S. Brown, another member, was in the Naval Reserve at San Pedro. Other members of the orchestra are: Harry Parker, Morris Caruthers, Ed Kerri, Rene Olin, Earl Naudain and L. Zerr.

CONFERENCE OPENS

LUTHERAN SYNOD CONVENES IN GLENDALE—MUCH INTEREST IN MEETING

The annual southern conference of the Lutheran Synod of California is in session in Glendale this week. The meeting opened in the Lutheran Church, corner of Harvard and Maryland, Monday evening, with a good attendance and splendid interest.

Rev. J. E. Hoick, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Boyle Heights gave the opening address. His message on our opportunities, based on Esther 4:14, "Who knows but you were brought to the kingdom for such a time as this," was inspiring. He gave a masterly exposition of the political and industrial crisis that confronts the world today and proved that there is a religious crisis at hand as well. As Esther was the human agent raised up to save her people, he believes the church to be the agency appointed of a Divine Providence to turn the impending doom which is threatening the religious life of the world today into a splendid triumph. He believes the church never had such an opportunity as today.

The conference is being continued today in the Lutheran Church while the Women's Missionary Conference is being held in the Christian Church.

Tonight Rev. H. J. Weaver, D. D., of Riverside, former pastor of the First Lutheran Church in Los Angeles, will speak.

HIGHWAY BOND ELECTION

Supervisor Jonathan S. Dodge announces that a special bond election will be held on Tuesday, July 1, 1919, in which only one matter will be presented, namely, a vote on the question of the state issuing $40,000,000 in bonds, for the purpose of road construction. Of this sum, $20,000,000 will be used for the completion of highways already outlined and voted upon, and the other $20,000,000 for the construction of new highways throughout the state.

Election will be held in the usual precincts as heretofore, and polls will be open all day.

FIRST HEALTH LECTURE

SCIENTIFIC BREATHING, LUNG DEVELOPMENT; FOOD PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

The opening lecture in the Chautaugua health course was delivered last night in the First Methodist Church, on Prevention of Disease by Right Living. The lecturer was introduced by Rev. Scott, who outlined the importance of the care of the body from a health standpoint. The audience was intensely interested in the problem of prevention of disease as outlined by J. C. Elliott. At the close of the lecture the entire audience joined heartily in the health culture exercises for the development of a proper breathing capacity so that we may have sufficient oxygen to purify the blood and feed the cell life of the body. The audience was enthusiastic over these exercises and both old and young participated heartily and enjoyed the work.

Scientific Breathing

The subject of the lecture tonight will be one of the most important of the course—Scientific Breathing for Health. Mr. Elliott says: "The average individual is starving for oxygen. No individual can be at their

REV. B. DUDLEY SNUDDEN WRITES OF DESOLATION AND WASTEFULNESS OF WAR

Excerpts from letters of Rev. B. D. Snudden, with the Educational and Religious Departments of the overseas forces:

Y. M. C. A., Souilly, France,
March 2, 1919.

At 4 o'clock yesterday I boarded a narrow gauge train at Bar-le-Duc for Souilly—a distance of 22 or 23 miles—and reached my destination at 8:30 p. m. Some ride! It was a primitive train, crowded, and people standing on the platforms, windows out, no lights, so we sat in the dark for nearly two hours. What a bedlam a train can be when filled with excitable French people—and especially so when some of them have been drinking "vin rouge" or "coniac!"

The Educational man of the "Y" invited me to ride over to Verdun this afternoon, and you can guess I accepted the invitation. We rode along what the French call the sacred road —"chemin de sacras"—the road over which they kept up communication with Verdun. Along the road are large quantities of ammunition. * * * The French saved Verdun, but it is not much now to have saved. The city is not very large, a walled city, and is now practically in ruins—a few buildings in fairly good condition. We visited the Cathedral. It is badly damaged, though far from demolished.

After visiting Verdun, we rode across the river and out into the hill country on the northeast, where the terrific fighting was done. Trenches, dugouts, shell-holes, wire entanglements, camouflage material and signs of the terrific contest were everywhere. We saw French cemeteries filled with crosses, lone crosses on the hillsides and here and there the bones of a German protruding from the ground, the nationality distinguished by the clothing. And, of course, there are unmarked graves everywhere. From what I saw, men and horses were buried together—not buried, scarcely covered. * * * Truly, this was a great day—to see Frenchmen, Russians, Americans, black and white, and Algerians, and I think some Chinese in French uniforms. The Russians were like a people without a country. Some of them had on one garment Russian, one of French and one of American, but after all I guess they are better off than in Russia. I saw American colored men on guard where America had supplies, etc. Think of the meaning of such a scene!

Souilly, France,

Yesterday I had quite a privilege —some men here were going into the Argonne country to locate a couple

LUNCHEON OF APPRECIATION

In appreciation of the services rendered by members of her committee in the recent drive to secure additional enrollment for the Tuesday Afternoon Club, Mrs. W. L. Andrews of 452 Pioneer Drive entertained them Thursday with a luncheon followed by a musical and social afternoon in which club problems were discussed. White rosebuds featured the floral decorations of the dining room, and elsewhere red roses were used. Covers were laid for Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, president of the club, Mrs. C. E. Norton, Mrs. Pauline Russell, Mrs. Albert Pearce, Mrs. Ethel Gerber, Mrs. Bessie Martin, Mrs. Judson Shepard and the hostess.

WAITED FOR HOURS

BUT THEIR BOY ARRIVED AT LAST ON BELATED TRAIN

J. W. Durham and wife of 611 W. Elk avenue went to the Southern Pacific station in Los Angeles yesterday afternoon to meet the train due at 5 o'clock, but it was 11:20 before it arrived. An eager crowd waited with them and grudged not the time for were not their own dear boys on that incoming train? As it pulled in every car window was filled with a pair of khaki-covered shoulders and a wild yell of greeting broke forth from the owners. Mr. and Mrs. Durham soon located their own son, Corporal J. Murray Durham, M. P., and a big stalwart fellow he is, bronzed and healthy looking. He and the other boys are now at the Presidio, San Francisco, and will be discharged in a few days. Then they will be home for good. Murray said as his contingent left Camp Merritt for the homeward journey, the detachment that Ormond Bradley belonged to had just come in, so he will doubtless soon be home, too.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1919

THEY'RE WATCHING ON THE RHINE

(By Brigade Sergeant-Major Allen C. Rankin.)

We were on the march through Luxembourg on a November Sunday when a crowd of us loitered beside the road, revelling in the quiet and lovely serenity of the sheltered countryside. The Second had gone through the twenty-eighth of May at Chateau Thierry, through Soissons and the Argonne, through Saint Mihiel and the Argonne-Meuse. We had charged up the Lookout Mountain slope of Mont Blanc under the fire of the German guns. We had fought in the last Verdun battle. From March until November we had gone forward without rest, sometimes going without sleep for seventy-two hours. Now, victorious, in the enemy's country and in peace, we rested.

Suddenly a motor car swung around the turn of a little church. In front of us it came to a sharp halt. We sprang to attention as General John Lejeune, commanding general of the Second, spoke: "Who's your ranking non-commissioned officer?"

"I am sir."

"Why aren't you all at services?"

We had no answer. No one had even thought to go.

"How long have you been in this Division?"

"Since it was organized, sir."

"I should think that any one who has gone through what you have, and come out of it, would want to thank God."

Come to think of it, we did. Without a word we went down to the little church. There, remembering the men who had started out with us and who would not go back with us, we gave thanks.

Isn't the Victory Liberty Loan the church down the road for the American Nation; the chance to thank God for life, for liberty, for peace; the place of promise that this peace and freedom won by the blood of the men who fell in France shall not be forfeited by our indifference?

Because I can not forget the look on the faces of boys lying dead on the fields of Chateau Theirry, because I can not forget the bombed hospitals and the shattered villages; because I can not forget the brave, blithe wounded who crowd the homecoming ships, I am daring to sound this trumpet before the walls of Jericho.

Not for us who have come through do I ask remembrance; but for those who come back to you maimed and for those who will not come back do I ask recollection of what the war cost. That they may not have died in vain it is our nation's task to watch, even as the German watches. That the German may know that we are not forgetting, not faltering in our great task, it is the first and paramount duty of the people of the United States to make this peace permanent by putting upon it the great seal of the Victory Liberty Loan. When this is set, the German will know that the American nation echoes the battle-cry of the Second, "What we take, we hold." We have taken peace. Let us hold it. For, unless we hold it now, the day will come when the great gray ships will be slipping out of the harbors again; and it will be our fault, then, that dead boys will be lying on the fields of France.

It's up to you, to me, to all of us here, to make this the last war with Germany. For the sake of the men who died, for the sake of other boys who will die if we fail, will you do your part in the Victory Liberty Loan that the Watch on the Rhine may know that we are united in triumph as we were united in war?

CARNIVAL AT M. E. CHURCH

The Carnival at the First Methodist Church on Friday night was a great success socially and everybody there had a very good time. It also yielded a neat return to the treasury of the Ladies' Aid. The exact amount is not yet known because not all the expenses have been deducted. Home-made candy was one of the popular features, which disappeared like dew before the sun. There was lots of it, but all was gone inside of an hour, also the home-made popcorn balls. All the concessions were good and earned money for the cause.

vetoed by the Governor. It will represent an increase of about $200,000. The county's share was also raised so the teachers will receive, if the measures are not vetoed, all they have been asking for.

A land settlement bill carrying an appropriation of one million to provide land which returning soldiers could buy on long time, was another popular measure which passed.

State aid for orphaned and abandoned children was raised from $6.25 to $10.00 per month which is an increase of $800,000, and $100,000 was voted for an institution for Morons.

The appropriations voted were about $5,000,000 in excess of state funds available. In other words, they voted all the funds which will be derived from state revenues for the next year, the five million dollar surplus and five or six millions besides.

The fine record that our high school cadets have made in the war, thousands of them having become sergeants or lieutenants, and the physical fitness they demonstrated, has encouraged a continuance of the training and provision for encampments once a year for special drill at some military camp. A measure asking for an appropriation of $250,000 for high school cadets to be used for guns and camp equipment was passed, after being cut to $75,000. An appropriation of $30,000 to be used in providing instruction for teachers to enable them to give proper corrective physical training in the elementary schools also passed. Manuals have already been prepared for this work and it is expected that it will eventually be covered by Normal school courses. This interest in physical development is directly traceable to the physical deficiencies which the war revealed.

Another bill of special interest to Glendale was the measure drafted by Hartley Shaw of this city and introduced by Mr. White, requiring the Railroad Commission to notify municipalities when any hearing on the raising or lowering of rates affecting the municipality is to be held. The opposition offered by the commission at first was withdrawn and the bill passed.

Southern California also got a grant for the establishment of University Courses at the Los Angeles Normal to relieve the congestion of Freshmen and Sophomores at the University of California and also reduce the expense for parents living south of the Tehachapi who wish their children to have university training. The bill was opposed by every other Normal School in the state on account of jealousy, but the fact that about 50 per cent. of the school tax is collected south of the Tehachapi and a large proportion of it paid by Los Angeles county, had weight which tipped the scale, especially as the Los Angeles delegation was a unit on the matter, believing it will be a very great advantage to this part of the state.

Mr. White had an interview with Governor Stephens just before he left Sacramento, who smiled when the matter of appropriation bills was mentioned and his responsibilities, saying: "My shoulders are broad. I guess it will have to be up to me." The assemblyman is reasonably confident, however, that the Governor will sign the teachers' increase bill, the orphans' aid, and the land settlement bill for the benefit of soldiers.

One of the things secured beyond peradventure because included in the regular budget was $800,000 for the Long Beach harbor improvement.

FIRST HEALTH LECTURE

best and preserve their health and strength without a chest of five and one-half inches. The average individual has but three. Health and efficiency demand a lung capacity of 250 cubic inches; the average individual is living on less than 200 cubic inches. The result of this imperfect breathing is the fearful death-rate from pulmonary diseases which claims 500,000 people in our nation annually. Practically all these are preventable deaths."

Lung Diseases Preventable

Our ablest scientists and physicians claim that all pulmonary diseases are preventable. No child can inherit tuberculosis of the lungs, even though both parents have died with tuberculosis. The only thing they can inherit is a weak lung; this can be developed just as well as weak muscle can be developed. Scientific breathing means the perfect development of the lungs of the child and the adult so that the lungs may be immune from the assaults of tubercular germs and all pulmonary diseases. Even the scourge of the common cold is preventable if we will give proper care to our bodies. The common cold will become a thing of the past. All these problems will be discussed in the lecture tonight and the principle for proper development of the lungs will be given the entire audience. The scientific principles of lung development by breathing exercises will be given the entire audience.

The subject of the lecture Wednesday at 2:30 will be Foods, Nutrition and a Balanced Ration. The subject Wednesday, 7:45, Dangers of an Abnormal Food Supply. This will show the cause of so many deaths from heart disease and apoplexy among business and professional people. Admission free to all lectures.

OFFICERS DISCUSS PLANS

The officers appointed by the Community Sing desire all our people to be interested and have a part in this branch of work our Government is advocating for the good of our country..

We have Prof. Kirchoffer, one of the best state of the Union, in the best country in the world, the good in the best county of the state, in the best state of the Union, in he best country in the world, he good old U. S. A.

Indeed, Glendale is a city of homes in the deepest, truest sense of the word, for should a count be taken, it would likely prove Glendale to have as many baby vehicles as automobiles.

Therefore let us rejoice and sing and support the Community Sing every Thursday with our presence or finance. The city allows us $10 per month. Fifty-two pledges are signed, amounts ranging from ten cents up per month.

Prof. Kirchoffer receives only $15 per night for his time, instructing and leading; the pianist $5.

At present we are in debt $175 and we have on hand $55.80 to pay the bill. Therefore those interested in seeing this continue can help.

Miss Ray and Miss Ryan were guests of some Belgians who have been residents of Los Angeles for about ten years, who have a beautiful home and whose daughter entertained them charmingly during their stay.

The delegates had a royal good time all around, with splendid programs at all sessions, dancing, and, finally, a banquet at which Miss Ray responded to a toast.

HEAD-ON COLLISION

UNAVOIDABLE ACCIDENT RESULTS IN MINOR INJURIES

Rev. J. S. O'Neill was homeward bound from Hollywood, on Sunset boulevard, yesterday afternoon, and when near the junction with Echo Park avenue he almost ran into a big touring car that was backing across the road and criss-crossing around in an endeavor to change direction. Rev. O'Neill swung his car sharply to the right to avoid a collision and was run into, head on, by a small car containing E. V. Miller and wife, two little sons and an infant in the mother's arms. Their machine was badly smashed and the two children received several glass cuts from the broken windshield, none of them serious. The parents and babe were uninjured. One of Rev. O'Neill's front tires was punctured, but no other damage done to his machine. He accompanied the Millers to a hospital where the children's wounds were treated and saw them started for home. They attached no blame to him. The big car that was the cause of the accident sped away without an offer of assistance.

ARTHUR BUDWAY HAS LANDED

Mrs. F. A. Budway of 432 West Harvard received a telegram yesterday from her younger son, Arthur, stating that he had just landed and was on his way to Camp Upton for discharge. They expect him home in about two weeks. He went out with the 53rd Ammunition Train, but when that command was cited for return he was on detached duty. So when the 58th Coast Artillery was given home orders he and his detachment were allowed to join them.

FOOTHILL CLUB

Mrs. Julius Kranz, 1317 North Brand boulevard was hostess Friday to the ladies of the Foothill Club who gathered at her home for a social afternoon. The ladies were received in rooms gay and fragrant with Mammon Cochet roses and Easter lilies and spent a happy afternoon in social intercourse enlivened with selections on the Victrola. Some Red Cross work was completed during the afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served at three tables in the diniing room embellished with bowls and vases of roses and lilies, and strands of asparagus fern.

May you continue to deserve commendation.

MRS. ARFWEDSON'S CASE

The many friends of Mrs. M. T. Wood-Arfwedson of 434 West Harvard street will be glad to learn that she now has a fair chance for recovery, after having undergone a major operation at the Angelus Hospital, Los Angeles. Her case has been that of injury from an X-ray diagnosis something more than a year ago, almost tragic in its results. How anyone could endure the agony of fifteen months such as Mrs. Arfwedson has, and still live, is hard to comprehend. An eminent surgeon recently returned from France was the first to give her hope and the operation performed by him last Sunday morning seems now to justify that hope. From a wound two inches wide and six inches long next the spinal column a handful of proud flesh was removed and while very weak she is said to be rallying from the shock. Mrs. Arfwedson is a well known musician and has been a resident of Glendale the past 12 years.

JACKSONS RETURN FROM RIVERSIDE

Mr. and Mrs. D. Ripley Jackson and little daughter returned Monday night from a week-end outing at the Mission Inn, Riverside, which was a disappointment in one way and a delightful surprise in another. They left Glendale Friday night and ran into a rain storm which continued throughout their stay and kept them confined to the hotel. It gave Mr. Jackson a chance for a much-needed rest and they were surprised to find sojourning at the inn a colony of old friends from East Orange, New Jersey, whom they did not know were in this part of the country. This reunion did them all good and they consider the trip in the nature of a special providence.

SEEING FRANCE

of graves, and I had the opportunity of going along. You may be sure it was "some trip." Great shells had torn the road to pieces and they had been repaired for the time being. The traffic had worn into these holes until they were almost as bad as at the beginning. Treatment for the liver? Then some. The trip, however, was one of a life time. We were in the heart of the Argonne Forest. The forest is all cut to pieces—the ground one mass of shell holes—war's ravages marks on the face of the earth as thick as small-pox marks on the face of a man.

The trench systems and dugouts are wonderful and show that the Germans thought they were there to stay—probably expected that this would be a permanent line of their new provinces. The mountains are covered with wire entanglements of all kinds, some so dense that it would seem impossible of passage. Shrapnel and exploded shells, "duds" and hand grenades are everywhere. On the top of the mountains I saw evidently a mine crater—a hole about 200 feet across by 60 feet to 100 feet deep. A tornado, a cyclone, a blizzard, an earthquake and fire could not make the country look worse. How any living thing existed in this land of the war's concentrated fury is a marvel. When the tempest of war was raging along these mountains, the most lurid pictures in Dante's "Inferno" must have been tame beside it. In one trench I saw an upholstered chair. I descended into a dugout, 30 feet underground, here was a stove, bunks, a seat and a table, and in each end a passage leading into other dugouts. Dugouts are as thick as rabbit holes in a rabbit infested country. We went through town after town which had been destroyed. San Francisco in the worst sections after the earthquake and fire resembles what is everywhere here.

For miles and miles the churned, pock-marked face of the earth and the ruins of villages and towns cry out against a state of society which permits such tragedies. There is desolation as far as the eye can see—everywhere is seen the wastefulness of war—bones, empty shells, unexploded shells, duds, broken implements, guns, bayonets, wrecked gun carriages, broken or discarded trucks, autos and wrecked trains.

Souilly, France,
March 5, 1919.

Since coming to Souilly, I have seen some of the tragedy of France—the home going of some of the refugees. God only knows to what they are returning. Most of them will not have a single room to call home. If the cellar is in habitable condition, they will be fortunate.

In one town I visited some French people had returned, and were only kept from starving by some American soldiers quartered in the ruined town. It is pathetic to see the woman leading the horses, and see on the wagon all their worldly possessions, and mighty few at that. Sometimes the man leads the horse and in the wagon is the family.

Today I saw some French soldiers driving French army trucks containing people and household effects. The poor people hear the call of spring and know that their only hope is to get back to the old place and try to raise some kind of a crop. And to think that the devastated area in France covers hundreds of miles! If a League of Nations can prevent this in the future, then let us have it.

Heippes, France,
March 6, 1919.

The boys in this town were in the fighting in the Argonne, and I guess suffered quite heavy losses. They are all glad the war is over, but extremely desirous of getting home. Men in the U. S. may oppose the League of Nations, but these men want no more war. And if the League of Nations will stop war the League is the thing the world will have. If the League is rejected by the politicians of America, the anathemas of the living and the dead soldiers will be upon them. If no determined effort is made to make the cessation of aggression and war the full fruit of victory, then the noble dead will have died in vain.

Recourt, France,
March 12, 1919.

Around Mihiel the work of cleaning up the country is moving rapidly. The French have the Boche prisoners out filling in the trenches, shell holes and dugouts, also gathering up the seemingly endless barbed wire. Talk about divine retribution! The Boche is getting it now.

This afternoon, since my return, a large company of German prisoners passed through this place. They had all their outfit, so I guess they are simply moving camp to a place where their work is needed. A French woman, opposite my billet, was in her upstairs window, as they went by, and she shook her fist at them, chattering on and on in French.

Metz, Lorraine,
March 20, 1919.

You will see that I am on my way to Germany. This has been an intensely interesting day. The team of religious workers, 24 in all, left Paris at 7:50 this morning and we arrived in Metz a little before 8 p. m. * * *

From what I saw of the country today I am not surprised that France wants what Germany robbed her of in the Franco-Prussian war.

Coblenz, Germany,
March 22, 1919.

This is my second day in Germany if you count yesterday. And today I have seen something of this city—it is quite a fine city and busy. The stores have all kinds of things and seem to be fairly well supplied.

This afternoon I took a stroll on the other side of the Rhine—walked up a hill in Ehrenbreitstein which gave me a fine view of Coblenz and the river both ways. As I looked down on Coblenz, the fortress of Ehrenbreitstein was towering on my right, and it was a thrilling sight to see "Old Glory" waving in the breeze above the old stronghold. Seldom have I seen a flag that flew so magnificently, the whole flag stretched out and waving gracefully. It was, indeed, the symbol of democracy—the emblem of a new age. And when I coupled with that pictures of the hosts of American soldiers over here, I was thrilled. In the face of such things, the old world can never be the same again. Even after that glorious flag comes down, the vision of it will always be in the sky. These are surely great days. * * * One thing I have seen today is lots of children—no race suicide here. There are also large numbers of husky, growing boys and girls.

Melsbach, Germany,
March 25, 1919.

We had a good service last night. The fellows are "regular fellows." A little wild, but real Americans. The fact is, they are the boys that did the big work in Belleau Wood, around Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel and other sections. The men here belong to the 15th Company, 16th Machine Gun Battalion, and the Headquarters Department of the Marines. Their battalion had nearly 700 casualties in the fighting. They are wonderfully proud of their record—but mighty anxious to be on the way home. Last night when asked to choose a song, a corporal, a New Yorker from the Bowery, called out, "Sing "Hold Back the Waters and Lead Us Home." You should have heard the fellows laugh.

I am desirous of obtaining one of the Marine insignia which is worn on the caps, but the fellows are so proud of them, and so zealous lest they lose them, that it is almost an impossibility to get one.

The scenery here reminds me of Northern California. In a month or two it will doubtless be wonderful. But promises of nature's beauty hold no attractions for the Marines, nor any of our fellows—they want to get home. The desire is just as strong among the men here as among the men in France. They will surely appreciate the good old U. S. A.

When I think of these boys going into battle as they went, and breaking the German drive, going with an utter abandon, with a mighty determination to do the task assigned them, I feel what real men they were, boys in years, but giant, heroic men in purpose and determination to make the name American truly glorious. They laugh and joke, have their horse play and seem to be rough but you cannot help admiring them. Yes, you feel a mighty drawing to them, they are such likable fellows. I count it one of the events and experiences of my "Y" work, to be with them for two or three days.

The boys are billeted in the houses and are quite comfortable. They are much better off than the fellows in France, but this will not reconcile them to staying here. I understand there is not much meat in the homes of the people, nor much of fats, but there seems to be quite sufficient vegetables. The people do not show signs of hunger nor starvation. These things may effect the people in the center and eastern portions of the country.

March 26.

Captain Hale brought me a Marine insignia this morning, when he came to breakfast. Later in the "Y" hall some of the Marines took the insignia and fastened it in my cap and said: "Now you are a real fellow." I am now an honorary attache of the Marines, I guess. I surely have enjoyed the short time I had with them.

The campaign is going well and promises to be a great success. Surely the American boys are willing to hear the gospel message. They do not want any pussy-foot or soft pedal business. If the speaker treats the fellows frankly, they respond in the same way.

Isenberg, Germany,
April 3, 1919.

The papers have come out giving date for this division to go home and I can tell you they are happy. They were packing their machine guns today. They are surely eager to leave Germany—they dislike it even more than they do France.

April 4, 1919.

The services here are going very well indeed. Last night the crowd was good and just the finest attention. I could not ask for a more earnest hearing, and even at home it would be hard to find it. I have seen more whispering in churches at home than I have seen in dance halls, theatres, huts, etc., over here.

April 5, 1919.

After breakfast the men had inspection of their outfits in a field and of course I went along. I am going to see all that the men have to do. They are making preparations for homegoing and had to have their stuff inspected to see if they had all their blankets, underwear, boots, clothing, etc. It was quite a scene, looked like soldiers getting ready to camp, but they simply used their tents to spread the other things upon. They have turned in their pistols, and machine guns have been packed. This evening a truck came and hauled some of the guns away. It is a great thing to catch the change in the spirit of the boys when they feel sure they are going home. And it would be a difficult thing to get some of the men into a war again.

Tomorrow morning I am to go to Klein Maschied for service at 9 o'clock. I fear the men will be in the depth of the blues. Although brigaded with this division, they are not to go home with it. They feared this, and now it is definitely settled that they are not to go at present. They have not been over nearly so long as the men here, but their desire for the good Old U. S. is mighty keen. I must try to encourage them in some way.
